PERSONAL PERSPECTIVES

JENNIFER PANCHAUD, ASSOCIATE,
CORPORATE | INSURANCE & REINSURANCE

What excites you about coming to work?

I work with a dynamic team - no matter how busy or tough the day is, we always have a laugh and I've made great friendships with my colleagues. We genuinely try to support one another. Not everyone can say that they go to work with a smile on their face, but I generally do.

It is also exciting to be part of a firm that helps to shape the society we live in. Conyers often leads the charge on assisting various sectors in Bermuda with legislative reform and policy issues. Any lawyer at Conyers can play a role in this and I think that is unique and exciting.

What's the most challenging thing you have worked on recently?

I started in the Corporate & Insurance team at Conyers having practiced insurance litigation at a large London firm. It was very challenging (and humbling) to learn a new practice area and jurisdiction. It was also very rewarding and I think it has ultimately made me a better lawyer.

I worked on one of the largest, international restructurings that have gone through the US Bankruptcy Court. It has taken almost two years to complete and involved aspects of insolvency law, litigation, exchange control and insurance regulation, corporate and finance, as well as working closely with various corporate administrators. It is a good indication of the various aspects of law that an offshore lawyer might encounter.

What made you choose Conyers?

My relationship with Conyers started as a summer intern. I then won their legal scholarship and even though I chose to train and qualify at a London firm, Conyers kept in touch and encouraged my career from across the Atlantic. I have always felt supported by the firm.

If you could describe Conyers in three words, what would they be?

Strong. Adaptable. Relevant.

EDWARD RANCE, ASSOCIATE,
CORPORATE | BANKING & FINANCE

What excites you about coming to work?

I have awesome colleagues, and the work environment lacks the rigid hierarchy I encountered when onshore. Partners - even senior equity partners - are readily accessible, and the general approachability of everyone in the office has allowed me to learn and develop at a rapid pace. There is also a great deal of trust and autonomy (with, of course, appropriate supervision), to the point where I am allowed greater responsibility and scope to develop my own practice than I previously enjoyed onshore. Plus, I can wear shorts to work.

What's the most challenging thing you have worked on recently?

Two completely unrelated matters: I was the lead associate advising Liberty Latin America on their five billion dollar demerger from Liberty Global and subsequent listing and launch of a new Bermuda public holding company. We were involved in everything from employee compensation schemes to restructuring their European subsidiaries. On a different note, I acted for the Bank of N.T. Butterfield & Son, a local bank, in their listing on the NYSE and subsequently subordinated debt issuances; this required getting to grips with a lot of very new banking legislation in Bermuda which very few (if any) lawyers in private practice have had to analyse before.

What made you choose Conyers?

Actually, at the end of the day it was quite simple: the quality of the work and the quality of the people.

If you could describe Conyers in three words, what would they be?

Best in Bermuda.
